Subject: Region C Water Plan – Your input needed

Dear [First Name],

The Texas Water Development Board (TWDB) and the Regional Water Planning Groups have begun the next round of regional and state water planning. The Region C Water Planning Group recently received updated population and water demand projections from the TWDB for the [WUG Name] that now extend through the year 2070. Region C is now tasked with making adjustments to the TWDB projections as appropriate based on input from local entities. In order to do this we need your input on this data by April 12, 2013, ensuring that the 2016 Region C Water Plan (and the subsequent 2017 State Water Plan) includes adequate water supplies to meet the projected water demands for the [WUG Name].

This email contains two attachments and one hyper-link:

1. The first attached PDF file includes information from the 2011 Region C Water Plan. This information includes population and water demand projections through the year 2060, current water supply sources, and future water supply plans. This information is for your reference.
2. The second PDF attachment includes new population and water demand projections (including per capita use in gallons per person per day) through 2070 prepared by the TWDB (mentioned above) as well as the projections from the 2011 Region C Water Plan. Please keep in mind that the new TWDB projections are based on information collected from the 2010 Census and from TWDB Water Use surveys for 2011, accounting for any differences there may be from the 2011 Region C Water Plan projections. This information is also for your reference.
3. And, most importantly, please follow this link, [www.scottbowman], to complete an online survey regarding population, water demand and water supply for the [WUG Name]. Your input is very important. This link is unique to your entity, so please do not try to use this link to enter information for any other entity.

There are two important differences to note between the previous 2011 Region C Water Plan projections and the new draft projections.

- First, the new population estimates represent the TWDB's initial estimate of population. In the last round of planning, the Region C Water Planning Group recommended significant changes to improve TWDB's initial figures, and we expect to do so in this round of planning as well. Your input will help us improve the projections.
- The second important difference is that TWDB used historical 2011 per capita water consumption (gallons per capita per day, GPCD) as the basis for developing the new water demand projections. The historical 2011 per capita data were taken directly from the Water Use survey submitted to TWDB by individual water suppliers. The 2011 GPCD was then reduced incrementally each decade (2020-2070) to account for water-efficient fixtures/appliances standards. However, for some entities, 2011 may not have been representative of dry year use, either because drought contingency measures may have reduced water demands or for some other reason. If desired, an entity may provide information that supports using a different year as the base year (for determining GPCD). Entities may consider as far back as 2005/2006 for this, but should not consider years prior to 2005/2006.

The population and demand projections are based on city limits and service area boundaries. Where there are overlapping boundaries, the projections are intended to reflect the following approach:

- City utility serving beyond city limits – The service area boundary of a city-owned water utility may extend beyond the city boundaries; in such cases, the population and associated water use outside of the city limits are allocated not to the city but to the County-Other water user group.
- Non-city utility serving city residents – A non-city water utility may provide water directly to residents of a city that qualifies as a water user group; in such cases, the population and associated water use in the shared area are attributed to the city rather than the non-city utility.

Thank you for your time and input to this important water supply planning process. If you have any questions, you can reply to this email or you can call Gil Barnett at (817) 662-1215, and we will be glad to assist you.

For new WUGs

Subject: Region C Water Plan – Your input needed

Dear [First Name],

The TWDB and the regional water planning groups have begun the next round of regional and state water planning. For this next round of water planning, the TWDB has added the [WUG Name] as a Water User Group (WUG), which means that the 2016 Region C Water Plan must contain population and demand projections and future water supply plans specifically for the [WUG Name]. (WUGs are identified as cities whose populations are above 500 persons, or non-city water suppliers that provide an annual average of over 250,000 gallons per day.)

The Region C Water Planning Group has recently received draft population and water demand projections (including per capita use in gallons per person per day) from the TWDB for the [WUG Name] that extend through the year 2070. This information is attached for your reference. Please keep in mind that the new TWDB projections are based on information collected from the 2010 Census and from TWDB Water Use surveys for 2011.

Region C is now tasked with making adjustments to the TWDB projections as appropriate based on input from local entities. In order to do this we need your input on this data by April 12, 2013, ensuring that the 2016 Region C Water Plan (and the subsequent 2017 State Water Plan) includes adequate water supplies to meet the projected water demands for the [WUG Name].

In order to provide your input, please follow this link, www.scottbowman, to complete an online survey regarding population, water demand and water supply for the [WUG Name]. Your input is very important. This link is unique to your entity, so please do not try to use this link to enter information for any other entity.

There are two important items to note regarding how these new draft projections were developed.

- First, the new population estimates represent the TWDB's initial estimate of population. In the last round of planning, the Region C Water Planning Group recommended significant changes to improve TWDB's initial figures, and we expect to do so in this round of planning as well. Your input will help us improve the projections.
- The second important difference is that TWDB used historical 2011 per capita water consumption (gallons per capita per day, GPCD) as the basis for developing the new water demand projections. The historical 2011 per capita data were taken directly from the Water Use survey submitted to TWDB by individual water suppliers. The 2011 GPCD was then reduced incrementally each decade (2020-2070) to account for water-efficient fixtures/appliances standards. However, for some entities, 2011 may not have been representative of dry year use, either because drought contingency measures may have reduced water demands or for some other reason. If desired, an entity may provide information that supports using a different year as the base year (for determining GPCD). Entities may consider as far back as 2005/2006 for this, but should not consider years prior to 2005/2006.

The population and demand projections are based on city limits and service area boundaries. Where there are overlapping boundaries, the projections are intended to reflect the following approach:

- City utility serving beyond city limits – The service area boundary of a city-owned water utility may extend beyond the city boundaries; in such cases, the population and associated water use outside of the city limits are allocated not to the city but to the County-Other water user group.
- Non-city utility serving city residents – A non-city water utility may provide water directly to residents of a city that qualifies as a water user group; in such cases, the population and associated water use in the shared area are attributed to the city rather than the non-city utility.

If you would like additional information about the Region C Water Planning Group or the water planning process, you can follow this link to the Region C website (www.regioncwater.org/Faq/index.cfm), go to the TWDB - Regional Water Planning website (www.twdb.state.tx.us/wrpi/rwp/rwp.asp), or contact Rick Shaffer at (817) 354-0189 or rshaffer@cpyi.com.

Thank you for your time and input to this important water supply planning process. If you have any questions, you can reply to this email or you can call Gil Barnett at (817) 662-1215, and we will be glad to assist you.
